

NEWSLETTER 2 -

Welcome to the second newsletter of the Erasmus+ project "How much warmer is One Degree".

Our project is committed to addressing environmental and climate challenges through fair and inclusive access to education and educational resources. We are aware that many people, especially those coming from migrant backgrounds and refugees with limited knowledge of the language of the host country, may find it difficult to access crucial information on sustainability and climate change.

The "One Degree" project aims to bridge this gap by developing accessible and user-friendly educational materials that promote environmental awareness, understanding of climate change, and sustainability. These materials will be available for free and will aim to support young people and adults with lower levels of education and limited language proficiency, with particular attention to foreigners, refugees, and migrant women.

The project consortium is working to complete the results by September 2024 in order to then be able to organize the promotion activities.

The following products will be available on a dedicated e-learning platform:

- Adult Toolkit: A comprehensive collection of informative and educational materials available online, including documents, videos, and audio files.
- Educator Learning Course: A course designed for educators and teachers, allowing them to create customized educational paths and curricula on ecology and the environment.
- Manual: A manual available both online and printable, designed as a practical tool for all citizens and for teachers who wish to use it in the classroom.

All educational materials will be accessible through a dedicated web platform and an app in English, Italian, Greek, and part of the documentation will also be translated into Arabic.

Stay tuned for further updates on our project and its progress. Together, we can make a difference in educating and inspiring actions for a more sustainable future!

Thank you for your support,

The "How much warmer is One Degree" Team
